COURT REFORM TURNED DOWN AS DANGEROUS

Senate Committee Rejects Roosevelt Bill as "Futile and Needless."

WANTS NO SUBSTITUTE

Measure Branded Attack on Judiciary To Make Government "of Men."

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 14 — The senate judiciary committee recommended rejection of the Roosevelt court bill in blistering language today, branding it "a needless, futile and gravely dangerous abandonment of constitutional principle."

The report could be so emphatically repudiated as parallel will never be presented to the free representatives of the free people of America, said the report, signed by seven Democrats and three Republicans.

The 10,000-word report echoed virtually all the objections raised to the measure in seven weeks of hearings.

It said the bill would not accomplish its purpose, would destroy the independence of the judiciary, and would make the government "one of men rather than one of law."

Oppose Centralization

"It contains," the majority said, "the germ of a system of centralized administration of law that would enable an executive so minded to send his judges into every judicial district in the land to sit in judgment on controversies between the government and the citizen."

As the controversial measure finally reached the senate, administration senators said they virtually had abandoned its proposal for adding five new judges to the supreme court at once.

They were trying instead to work out a compromise whereby elderly justices could be augmented or retired at the rate of one a year. Opponents, however, declared they would filibuster against any modified proposal.

Submission of the committee's report made it possible to call up the bill for debate at any time, but leaders gave no indication when they might do so.

The eight members of the judiciary committee who voted for the bill did not submit a minority report.

Sen. Hatch, Democrat of New Mexico, signed the majority report, but said in a separate statement that the arguments were against the bill in its present form.

Amendments Held Likely

"It has been my thought," he said, "that these can be met by proper amendments to the bill; that with sufficient safeguards, it can be made a constructive piece of legislation."

Never before has a Roosevelt bill come from committee with such a denunciation as the committee's report. It was prepared chiefly by three Democrats—Senators King of Utah, McCarran of Nevada, and O'Mahoney of Wyoming.

They recommended rejection of the bill for these "primary reasons":

"The bill does not accomplish any one of the objectives for which it was originally offered.

"It applies force to the judiciary and in its initial and ultimate effect would undermine the independence of the courts.

"It violates all precedents in the history of our government and would in itself be a dangerous precedent for the future.

"The theory of the bill is in direct violation of the spirit of the American Constitution and its employment would permit alteration of the Constitution without the people's consent or approval.

"It tends to centralize the federal judiciary by the power of shifting judges from one district to another at will.

No Political Power Spread

"It tends to expand political control over the judicial department by adding to the powers of the legislative and executive departments respecting the judiciary."

Attacking President Roosevelt's message recommending the bill, the senators said:

"It should be pointed out here that a substantial portion of the message was devoted to a discussion of the evils of conflicting decisions by inferior courts on constitutional questions and to the alleged abuse of the power of injunction by some of the federal courts.

"These matters, however, have no bearing on the bill before us, for it contains neither a line nor a sentence dealing with either of these problems."

They described the bill as "totally inadequate" to meet any of the other objectives of the president. Denying that it would relieve congestion in the courts, they said:

"The facts indicate that the

SWOC Acts To Shut Off Coal From Struck Mills

600,000 Miners Reported Ready To Quit Work If Operators Continue Sending Fuel to Steel Plants Refusing To Sign Union Contracts.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, June 14—Van A. Bittner, regional director of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee, said today that steps have been taken to stop the coal supply to all struck steel plants. Mine strikes will follow if any shipments are made, he said.

He predicted that 600,000 United Mine Workers of America may be affected by Saturday.

"Every coal operators' association in the United States has been notified by executive officers of the U. M. W. A. that any mine attempting to ship coal to any steel plant now on strike will be immediately closed down," Bittner said at a press conference.

"This marks the beginning of a real fight. They can't make steel without coal."

Lewis Orders Strike

Meanwhile, the coal-steel dispute raged from another angle when John L. Lewis' CIO blasted at America's second largest empire of steel, the Bethlehem Steel Corp.

"Strike!" was the order he gave to 9,000 coal miners; and the miners replied that the cessation of work in 19 mines, most of them Bethlehem-owned, would be complete by tomorrow.

The strike order, issued in Washington yesterday, struck also at mines of the Republic Steel Corp. and the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co.—huge steel industries already pitted in struggle against CIO's "strong man" and his union; but it was at Bethlehem's door that the strike order laid its chief defi.

Republic has four mines affected by the strike call. Youngstown Sheet & Tube has two; but company spokesmen said these two already are closed in consequence of CIO's strike call in the Mahoning valley of Ohio last month.

Inland Faces Board Charges

Nor was Lewis and his Committee for Industrial Organization the only force beating at "steel." The national labor relations board, with broad powers under the Wagner act, called upon the Inland Steel Co. to answer charges that it (1) refused to bargain with SWOC—the Steel Works Organizing Committee of CIO—and (2) promoted a "company union" of its own.

The board's complaint adds that Inland Steel's action caused the strikes at Indiana Harbor, Ind., and Chicago Heights, Ill.—strikes that began May 25 and are still in effect.

Crowds of miners from the Rosedale and Franklin pits of Bethlehem Steel poured into Johnstown last night, cheering the announcement of union leaders that the 19 mines of Bethlehem and the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co would be closed until the steel strike is settled.

Hundreds joined the picket lines at the Cambria works.

Pennsylvania's Gov. George Earle, hopping about the state yesterday in an autogyro, pleaded that there be no disorder.

Wants Company to Sign

"The company could settle this thing by signing a contract," he said. "I consider them unreasonable in not doing so."

To enforce his plea for peace Gov. Earle ordered extra details of state police to the Johnstown area.

Today the troopers, their steel riot helmets on and their arms ready, were on duty. During the night they broke up one crowd that was stoning a street car on which rode several steel company workers.

Mayor Daniel J. Shields conferred more than an hour early today with Major Lynn Adams

EIGHT HURT IN HEAD-ON CRASH

Bucyrus Residents Injured; Wreck Ties Up Sunday Traffic on Route 23.

PHILO WOMAN ALSO HURT

Two Accidents Among Several Reported Here Over Week-End.

Eight persons were injured in a head-on automobile collision last night and a Philo, O., woman suffered a fractured arm in two of several accidents in and near Marion over the week-end.

Persons injured in the head-on collision which occurred just north of the city limits on North Main street at about 7:30 o'clock last night are: Mrs. Florence Davis, cuts over the right eye and right arm, her husband, Frank Davis, 42, both of Toledo, bruises, and Mrs. Davis' father, S. P. Merrill, 85, of Columbus, cuts about the face; James W. Kiess, 36, and his wife, Georgiana Kiess, 31, both of Bucyrus, cuts and bruises, and their three children, Gene, 14, Vivian, 12, and Sylvia, 10, face lacerations.

Mrs. Davis was taken to the City hospital in the W. C. Boyd ambulance and will probably be released tomorrow, attendants reported this morning. Mr. Kiess suffered a scalp wound which required two stitches to close. He was treated at the City hospital and released. Other members of the Kiess family were treated at the office of a Bucyrus physician.

Crash Head-On

The collision occurred shortly after 7:30 o'clock as the Davis car, headed north, and the southbound Kiess automobile, crashed head-on in the southbound lane of traffic, at the west side of the three-lane highway. Mr. Davis was apparently attempting to pass another northbound car, and after pulling into the center lane, applied his brakes, highway patrolment from the Marion sub-station who investigated, reported. The Davis automobile skidded directly across the road into the front of the southbound Bucyrus car.

The Kiess automobile was turned half-way around in the highway by the impact. It was demolished and the car driven by Davis was damaged to the extent of about $200. Both were taken to Nick's Super Service garage which is just a short distance north of where the collision occurred.

Heavy traffic on routes 23 and 4, which join a mile north of the city, was tied up for several hours. Cars were lined up three abreast from the traffic light at Fairground and Main streets, for a distance nearly two miles north, past the accident scene. City police and highway patrolmen directed traffic until the wreckage was cleared from the highway.

Injured Philo Woman

The injured Philo woman is Mrs. Linnie McAfee, 60. She suffered a fractured right arm when an automobile driven by Clarence A. Emerick of Philo, in which she was a passenger, collided with a car driven by Charles Seither of Germantown, Saturday night about 6 o'clock at the intersection of Main and Fairground streets, it was reported by police.

Seither was driving east on Fairground street and was making a left turn on Main, and Emerick was headed north, at the time of the accident. Mrs. Emerick, and daughter, Catherine, and Mrs. McAfee were occupants in the Emerick car. The front of Seither's car was badly damaged and it was taken to the McDaniel Motor Co. garage. Emerick's automobile was damaged about the left side but was driven away from the scene under its own power.

REFUGEES FLEE BESIEGERS

Basque's Morale Breaking and City Seemingly Given Up For Lost.

By The Associated Press

BILBAO, Spain, June 14—Low-flying insurgent war planes from the besieging armies that have pressed into Bilbao's edges raided the center of this Basque capital in mid-morning today, spitting machine-gun fire.

The people of this "Pittsburgh of Spain," besieged almost since the start of the insurgent northern offensive early in April, fled for shelter as the planes dove and circled.

Defense anti-aircraft guns pumped shells into the sky.

Heavy bombing operations over this tightly-hemmed-in area (insurgents reported they already had taken some houses in Bilbao's actual outskirts) made evacuation of the wounded a grave problem.

Fall Under Fire

The road northwest to Santander was under heavy attack from the air, with 23 persons reported killed in one sector. This was virtually the only land artery of escape for the Bilbao poupulation.

Generalissimo Francisco Franco was in personal command of the final stage of the campaign planned by his dead aid, Gen. Emilio Mola, whose death in an airplane crash several days ago had momentarily slowed up the months-old drive.

Mop-up troops were slowly working their way forward through the industrial outskirts of the suburban centers of Zaganza, Bermuedo, and Direo.

The factory smokestacks were cold and from a vantage post on the Mountain of the Castle, at the city's edge, Bilboa looked dead—breathless and silent.

The morale of the Basques was apparently breaking and their capital seemingly being given up for lost.

Two Avenues of Flight

The three days of this amazingly precise drive placed Franco's crack troops in a close semi-circle about the city. Only to the north, on the Bay of Biscay side, and on the west was there a possibility of escape for the city's teeming thousands of hungry inhabitants.

Many of Bilbao's refugee-swollen population of 300,000 were reported by scouts of the advance guard to be streaming westward. The roads were said to be jammed with refugees again seeking a haven.

Behind the advance guard in the outskirts of the city itself and the supporting detachments cleaning up the industrial suburbs, the main body of Franco's war machine was held on the heights of Santa Marina, just a long downhill glide of a mile and a half into the center of the city.

Some officers expected the insurgent banner to fly from the Basque capitol by nightfall.

A communique based on reports received from all sectors of the front at headquarters said the columns were moving in on a line rimming the capital on the east through Larrabezua, Lezama, and Zamudia.

1,000 Taken Prisoner

More than 1,000 prisoners were taken in yesterday's operations, including high commanders of the last line of fortifications which the insurgents now have made their first offensive line.

A captured Basque told this story of the intense battle to an

NUMBERS FINE ASSESSED HERE

Cleveland Man, One of Three Arrested at Meeker, Pleads Guilty in Court.

RELEASED AFTER PAYMENT

Numbers Blanks Brings Charge of Possessing Gambling Equipment.

A Cleveland Negro, one of three men arrested Friday afternoon at Meeker by deputies of Sheriff Fred F. Miller on suspicion of operating a "numbers" racket in Ohio and Pennsylvania, was fined $75 and costs in municipal court this morning. He pleaded guilty to a charge of possessing gambling equipment.

The Negro, Robert McGee, 38, and his two companions, Arthur Drake, 23, and James Jackson, 23, all of Cleveland, were released upon payment of the fine and costs.

Belief that the three were part of a "numbers" ring with headquarters in Lima and Pittsburgh was expressed by Sheriff Miller, although an investigation failed to turn up definite proof.

Officials pointed out that a charge of possession of gambling equipment was the only charge they could bring against any of the trio, since it could not be shown that they actualy had done any "numbers" writing in Marion county. A quantity of policy tickets such as are used in numbers writing was found in their possession, however, and was used as the basis for the charge filed this morning, according to Prosecuting Attorney Paul D. Michel.

The Cleveland trio was arrested Friday by three deputies of Sheriff Miller as the climax of an investigation which had been made into long-distance telephone calls which the trio had been making from Meeker. The calls were made in a type of code, the men using cryptic language, initials and odd words to avoid interpretation of their messages.

The Negroes at first were suspected of being engaged in dope peddling or counterfeiting, and were picked up as they drove up to a Meeker garage about 2 p. m., apparently intending to make another of the long distance calls. The three deputies were parked at the side of the garage and arrested the Negroes as their car came to a stop in front of the garage.

Thousands of CIO strikers and sympathizers rallied at a mass meeting in Monroe yesterday in protest against treatment of pickets whose lines were broken at the Newton Steel plant last week. Signs and banners proclaiming CIO aims were very much in evidence. National guard troops were on hand to prevent possible clashes of opposing factions. Homer Martin, head of the UAW, spoke.

Vanguard Is Due Today for Mail Clerks' Meeting

Officers To Arrive To Lay Plans for District Association Convention.

Two officials of the Fourth division of the Railway Mail association, to meet in Marion for a biennial convention Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, were to arrive here this afternoon to make preliminary plans for the sessions.

They are R. G. Burris of Hayler Park station, Cincinnati, president of the division, and J. B. Hosier of New Albany, Ind., division secretary. The division embraces Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana and part of Illinois.

Mr. Burris and Mr. Hosier, upon their arrival, are to confer with J. C. Luvisi, president of the Marion association, to map convention plans. Tentative arrangements call for a staff of 25 to 30 to count the votes in a mail ballot to elect division officers on Tuesday, social sessions including a banquet and program for Wednesday and business session Thursday. Approximately 500 persons are expected to attend.

Final arrangements were made for entertaining the Fifth division convention at a joint meeting of the Marion Branch of the Railway Postal association and auxiliary, Friday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Matson of the Claridon pike. Mr. and Mrs. V. W. Orth were the assisting host and hostess.

State Commander of C. A. R. Unable To Attend Annual Encampment.

The "boys in blue" of the Ohio Department, Grand Army of the Republic, carried on in their seventy-first annual encampment today at Columbus, without their leader, Francis S. Layton of this city, who is unable to attend because of illness.

Planning as late as last Saturday to attend the encampment, which opened yesterday, the commander was ordered by his attending physician to remain at his home on North Main street. A cold, contracted more than two weeks ago, has developed into congestion of the lungs and may lead to complications, his physician said.

Commander Layton's son and daughter-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Francis Layton and their daughter of 852 Wilson avenue, J. C. Spires of Park street, a member of Cooper Post No. 117, and Miss Margaret Haberman of North State street left today for Columbus.

More than 1,000 delegates of auxiliaries to the G. A. R. are in attendance. The program includes a visit to the governor's mansion today and a talk by the national commander C. H. William Ruhe of Pittsburgh, tonight. The encampment will end Thursday after election of officers. Mentioned as probable candidates for commander to succeed Mr. Layton were Edwin A. Johnson of Cleveland, Solomon Zarbaugh of Toledo, and Theodore Wells of Cadiz.

DOROTHY THOMPSON WINS TOP RANK AS JOURNALIST

Noted Woman Writer To Contribute to Star Three Days Each Week.

Dorothy Thompson, whose column of news evaluation and interpretation will appear three times a week in The Star, beginning this week, has been recognized by many authorities as the world's outstanding newspaper-woman of today.

She has spent many years as foreign correspondent of American newspapers, is the author of "The New Russia," "I Saw Hitler," and many articles in magazines. She is opposed to the propaganda of dictatorship and hopes America will hold to the ideals of free discussion of public questions as against the trend toward controlled public opinion.

John Gunther, telling of her great newspaper beats, said: "For eight years in the 1920's Dorothy Thompson swept through Europe, a blue-eyed tornado. She went abroad an unknown; she returned a famous journalist and the wife of Sinclair Lewis. Today she is urging a new and liberal conservatism in America."

Last October, in introducing this great woman writer to an audience in New York City, Mrs. William Brown Meloney, noted editor of This Week, said: "Of all the women in American life, the one best known and most feared by European politicians is Dorothy Thompson. She has the wit to see, the passion to learn, and the courage to speak."

Watch for the first Dorothy Thompson dispatch in The Star this week. Her three columns each week will alternate daily with the same number of dispatches from Walter Lippmann, noted editor and commentator.

DISMISS FLOOD CONTROL SUIT

Judges Hold There Is No Evidence To Sustain Conservancy Ouster Charges.

JUDGE YOUNG ON COURT

Upper Sandusky Man One of Two Named in Action at Columbus.

The Scioto-Sandusky conservancy court of 17 Ohio common pleas judges, including Judge Hector S. Young of Marion, dismissed today a suit seeking removal of the conservancy district's board of directors. The Associated Press reported. The hearing was held at Columbus.

The vast $30,000,000 project will include a dam for the Scioto river in Delaware county, a diversion canal between Upper Sandusky and Marion by which headquarters of the Little Scioto and Sandusky rivers may be connected. Other dams are planned along the courses of the rivers.

The 17-judge court—one jurist from each county in the district—held there was no evidence to support charges of the Scioto-Sandusky Conservancy association that two of the three directors delayed progress of the project for political considerations.

The firm of Cowann, Adams and Adams, chief counsel for the district, moved for dismissal immediately after hearing of the case was resumed.

The judges went into an executive session after which Presiding Judge Robert Duncan of Franklin county announced:

"For the good of the district, the court decided to dismiss the petition and sustain the motion of counsel for the directors."

Allen Pretzman, former counsel for the district and attorney for the association, indicated he would not appeal the decision.

The association, composed of residents of the district, levelled its charges against William E. Martin of Upper Sandusky and Joseph Van Meter of Waverly.

Seeking their removal, the association charged them with misfeasance, malfeasance, nonfeasance and breach of duty. Removal of the other director, B. B. Smith of Fremont, also was sought, but he was not included in the particular charges.

Denying the charges, counsel for the director declared that the ouster move was prompted by "antagonism" of Allen Pretzman, an association attorney, and formerly general counsel of the district.

NEW TRIAL SOUGHT IN NUMBERS CASE

Attorneys for S. W. Truman File Motion in Municipal Court Today.

Attorneys for S. W. (Slim) Truman, found guilty Friday afternoon by Municipal Judge W. R. Martin of a charge of promoting the "numbers" game here, filed a motion for new trial in the municipal court office this morning.

Action on the motion is being withheld for a day or two, Judge Martin said, until it is known whether Truman's attorneys desire to argue the motion in court or leave it up to a decision by the court without argument. Judge Martin withheld sentence Friday to allow the defense the customary three days for filing a new trial motion.

The motion, filed by Paul D. Smith of Marion and W. E. Bartels of Columbus, states five reasons why a new trial should be granted. It asserts that the court erred in overruling a defense mo-

HIT AS MACHINE LEAVES TRACKS

Mrs. Alice Mitchell Victim of Unusual Accident Along Erie Line.

DRIVER ALSO IS INJURED

Party Was Walking Toward Green Camp To Spend Day Fishing.

A Marion woman is in City hospital today, seriously injured as a result of being struck early Sunday by a light Erie railroad motor car which had left the rails after hitting her pet dog about 1,000 feet west of the Clinton avenue crossing. The woman, her husband and brother-in-law were walking towards Green Camp bound for a fishing trip and the car was headed into Marion. The accident occurred at 12:50 a. m.

The woman is Mrs. Alice Mitchell, 51, of 971 Sheridan road. After being reported in critical condition last night, hospital attendants said she was slightly improved today.

Driver Also Injured

The driver of the motor car, S. D. Richardson, 34, of 572 Olney avenue also is in City hospital with major injuries though not critical.

Mrs. Mitchell's injuries are head lacerations, possible jaw fracture, abrasions across the chest, three teeth broken and others knocked out, fracture of the right shoulder, hemorrhage of the left hip caused by a puncture wound, injured left foot and bruises over the body.

X-rays were to be taken to determine the extent of her head injuries which also included a severe wound above the left eye in the hair line.

Mr. Richardson, who is foreman of maintenance and works through the signal department, received head lacerations, lacerations of the left leg and a fracture of the left collarbone.

The accident happened as the motor car was headed into Marion from Peoria, O., where Richardson had been called earlier in the day for work. Mrs. Mitchell is believed by railroad officials to have been walking a few feet behind her dog outside the rails, the dog being inside the rails. Her husband, James Mitchell, 50, and his brother, Herbert, 25, of 121 West Walnut, were following a few feet behind Mrs. Mitchell. The husband said he was walking inside the rails while Herbert was walking to the north just outside the rails.

Erie officials said today there is no doubt but that Mrs. Mitchell would have escaped without injury had not the dog been struck.

Husband Describes Accident

The husband at the bedside in the hospital this morning described the accident which he said "happened in a flash."

"We had started to walk to Green Camp as we have done several times in the past—to go fishing. We had been on the tracks just a few minutes and were only a couple of blocks from home. We go for the hike as much as anything.

"The first thing I knew of the car was that it hit my wife and the dog. Herbert grabbed me just in time and jerked me off the tracks or I would have been hit too."

Mitchell said his brother called the W. C. Boyd ambulance while he stayed on the scene. Richardson was taken to the hospital in a taxi.

Mr. Mitchell said they were planning to fish near Green Camp later Sunday. They had taken a blanket with them to rest on until daybreak.

Erie officials said the car struck the dog, a year old half Spitz and half terrier, called Sport, first and then left the rails and crashed into Mrs. Mitchell, throwing her several feet to the north of the track. The dog apparently got under the wheels, they said. The car continued straddling the rails for a few feet then threw Richardson off to the south and continued on for 60 or 65 feet until it stopped.

Being made largely of wood, it was badly damaged. A flashlight, used by Richardson on the car, had a broken lens.

Erie officials said they will make a more thorough investigation as soon as they are able to talk with Richardson.

The dog was fatally injured and was later killed by police.

Mr. Mitchell is a coremaker at the Marion Steam Shovel Co. Mrs. Mitchell's father is Thomas Hurley, county sealer of weights and measure.

28 RUSSIANS KILLED AS RAIL WRECKERS

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, June 14—Twenty-eight persons have been convicted and executed at Svobodny, in the Soviet far east, for wrecking the Amur railroad, it became known today.

The charges against these alleged "wreckers" were the same as those made in three previous trials in the far east, at Svobodny and at Ghabarovsk.

These trials already had resulted in 66 executions. All the condemned were accused of being participants in a Trotskyist, Japanese spy and terror organization which allegedly acted along the Amur railroad.

This case apparently had no direct connection with the far eastern trials, except that all reflected the Soviet's grim determination to wipe out opposition on every front.

STOCKS TOPPLE 1 TO 7 POINTS

Record Slump Linked to Continued Industrial Controversies.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, June 14—Selling appeared in the stock market in relatively heavy volume today and toppled many leading issues fractions to more than 7 points to new lows for the year.

Brokers attributed resumption of the decline principally to further labor upsets, although the business picture generally was not without its dark spots.

Steels and motors led the slide, but virtually all departments participated.

Outstanding on the losing side were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, American Rolling Mill, American Steel Foundries, Chrysler, General Motors, Baltimore & Ohio, U. S. Rubber, Goodyear, Goodrich, Anaconda and American Smelting.

Although utilities were not as hard hit as the rest, most sold at bottom prices for about a year and a half.

In addition to the calling out of workers in coal mines owned by steel companies at loggerheads with the unions, fears were expressed other industries might feel the pressure of unionization movements.

The financial troubles of France were brought sharply to the attention of Wall Street when the French bank boosted its discount rate from 4 to 6 per cent.

Bonds and commodities were uneven.

Discouraging to carrier observers was the recent indifference of transportation company issues to an assortment of excellent earnings statements. New York Central, for instance showed 10 cents net in April against 6 cents in the 1936 month and $1.06 a share for the first four months compared with a deficit in the same period a year ago.

While current railroad negotiations were proceeding amicably, in some quarters the belief was expressed a general payroll lift of between 5 and 10 per cent was likely. In the event a 7½ per cent increase is agreed upon, it was estimated the additional expenses of Baltimore & Ohio would be $1.07 and New York Central $1.01.

Wool Market

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, June 14—Asking prices on fleece wools in Boston were inclined to stiffen today though users showed reluctance to buy freely at recent quotations.

Several houses quoted 44 cents in the grease on grading combing three-eighths blood and on quarter blood Ohio fleeces, but some of like grades were reported available slightly below these asking prices.

Offerings on the low side of ranges paid for these grades last week were restricted.

DROUTH IN CANADA LIFTS WHEAT PRICE

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, June 14 — Despite sharp transient setbacks that were largely associated with weakness of securities, wheat prices today averaged higher.

Urgent need of moisture in Saskatchewan, together with 5 cents bulge in rye quotations at Winnipeg, was chiefly responsible for wheat price jumps. On the other hand, big arrivals of newly harvested wheat southwest—526 cars at Fort Worth, Enid and Wichita—served as a bearish factor at times.

At the close, wheat was 1 cent to 1¾ above Saturday's finish, July 1.07¾@1.07⅞, Sept. 1.06⅞@1.07¾, corn ⅜ off to 1¼ up, July 1.13@1.13¼, Sept. 95¼@95⅝, and oats ¼ to ½ advanced.

Mansfield won over Fremont and Tiffin trounced Fostoria. Because both Sandusky and Mansfield, in a neck and neck race for the league top spot, each won two games, the standings with respect to the two leading clubs did not change.

Last week Sandusky trailed the league leading Mansfield outfit, by a half-game margin. Mansfield won over Findlay, 4 to 1, in the only contest played Saturday, advancing its lead to a full game. The box scores of the Sandusky-Findlay doubleheader follow:

RUSH WORK ON FENCE AT PARK

Workers Busy at Baseball Field To Be Used by New Marion Team.

Construction of a board fence around the Lincoln park baseball diamond, in preparation for the transfer of the Sandusky baseball club to Marion on June 22, has progressed rapidly since it was begun Saturday afternoon. Nearly half of the 150 posts necessary for the 10-foot wooden fence were in place this morning and workmen hoped to finish the task into today.

Lester Crawford of Sandusky, who last week visited the city with R. R. Thompson, owner of the baseball team, remained in the city over the week-end to direct the work at Lincoln park. The fence, to cost in the neighborhood of $1,000 is being constructed by the management of the ball club.

Plans were moving forward this morning under the direction of the Junior Chamber of Commerce to place on sale several thousand "booster day" tickets in support of the team which is to play its first game on the Marion diamond a week from tomorrow. Junior Chamber officials will make a concerted effort to raise $2,000 to assure the ball team remaining here throughout this season and next.

It was announced today that an official of the baseball league will come to Marion tomorrow and Thursday for a brief talk before the Kiwanis and Rotary club luncheons. Negotiations are under way to have Earl Smith, president of the Ohio State league speak before the luncheon meetings. The Rotary luncheon will be held at Hotel Harding tomorrow noon, and the Kiwanis luncheon at Hotel Marion, Thursday.

WPA workmen employed on the Lincoln park stadium project Saturday completed pouring the concrete for the fourth of five sections which compose the new $20,000 structure at the field to be used by the Marion team. WPA officials from the Marion office and the district office at Sandusky, gave the workmen orders to rush the job to any early completion.

103-YEAR-OLD RESIDENT OF MARYSVILLE STRICKEN

Mrs. Margaret Ann Owen Succumbs to Infirmities After Pioneer Life.

Special to The Star.

MARYSVILLE, June 14 — Union county's oldest citizen, Mrs. Margaret Ann Owen, aged 103 years and six months, died Saturday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Jennie Rutan. The infirmities of her advanced years had gradually taken Mrs. Owen's strength and she peacefully passed away at 9:15 a. m.

Mrs. Owen had not been seriously ill. Her health had gradually failed and during the two days preceding her death it was apparent the end was not far off. She was one of the pioneers of this county, coming into the county in a covered wagon with her parents in 1840. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Asa Clark, settled on a farm near the village of Newton—which is now the village of Raymond. On the farm, Mrs. Owen performed the many duties that fall to the lot of a girl on farms of those days and to that healthy outdoor life she attributed in part her long life.

Her husband was the late Thomas Owen, who died in November of 1928. They were married on Nov. 11, 1858, at Newton and enjoyed 70 years of wedded life. After their marriage they made their home on a farm near Woodstock and lived there for 68 years. They then came here and made their home with Mrs. Rutan. The Wednesday following a Sunday on which they observed their seventieth wedding anniversary at the Rutan home, Mr. Owen passed away. Mr. Owen was a veteran of the Civil war.

Mrs. Owen, who took an active interest in the current happenings of the world until the last, was born at Harrisburg, Pa., on Dec. 13, 1833. She was noted for her activity long after most persons of her advanced years had been compelled to be inactive. She was of a deeply religious nature. She often recalled the days of long ago when oxen were common on farms and timber was cleared to make way for farms.

Besides her daughter with whom she made her home is a son, Pearl Owen of North Lewisburg. Two sons, Asa and John, and three daughters, Mrs. Ida B. McAdams and Margaret and Jane Owen, are deceased.

Funeral services were to be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Rutan home. Burial will be made in the cemetery at Mechanicsburg beside the body of her husband.

Injury of Youth Ends Adventure for W. Va. Trio

Two subdued young adventurers turned toward their native West Virginia hills yesterday, convinced that seeing the world from freight trains is not only uncomfortable but dangerous.

Left behind was their pal, Willie Brown, 20, in the City hospital with a badly sprained leg.

The trio, Brown, Lucius Jordan and Marcus Lohr, all from the vicinity of Amberstdale, W. Va., was being chased off Chesapeake & Ohio railroad property Saturday afternoon by a railroad detective when Brown stumbled and fell. It was thought at first that one of his legs was broken but an X-ray examination showed there was no fracture.

Jordan and Lohr stayed in Marion overnight to see how their friend was getting along and left yesterday. They told police it was their first time away from home and that they believed they'd make it their last, if they had to travel "riding the rods."

The youths were on railroad property north of Silver street in the vicinity of Gay street when the detective started the chase. Brown was taken to the hospital in the W. C. Boyd ambulance. He was to be taken to the Marion county home this afternoon to recover from his injury.

TOUR CONCLUDED BY GALION COUPLE

Special to The Star.

GALION, June 14—Happy to be home again among friends, but richer in the knowledge of foreign travels, Dr. and Mrs. H. W. Todd returned here early Saturday morning from a 30,000 mile trip which took them through Africa.

It was another big trip for these world travelers. Two years ago they had traveled through the South Sea Islands and other islands of the Pacific. Several years before that they had taken a trip around the world, traveling some 65,000 miles. Other trips had included South America and the Hawaiian Islands.

On Jan. 15 this year they sailed from New York on the Calizer of the American Export Lines to Alexandria, Egypt. Here they took a river boat, traveling some 2,000 miles to the source of the Nile ending at Lake Albert. They made stops at Khartum, and also at Omduram, an Arab city of some 60,000 population in the desert country. The trip through Africa covered approximately 11,000 miles, while the remainder of the 30,000 were made by water.

All along the Nile the thermometer stayed around 120 degrees, the air was humid, and the sky an intense blue. No radio, no newspaper, and no word from the outside world, the Todds found themselves precisely foreign among conditions not changed in centuries.

'PARNELL' AT PALACE GOOD ADULT STORY OF LOVE, CONFLICT

"Parnell" at the Palace through Tuesday is good theater fare, recommended for adult fans. With Clark Gable and Myrna Loy co-starred and Edna May Oliver, Billie Burke and Alan Marshall heading a notably fine large supporting cast, the story of the Irish leader who dared to wreck his life's work to have beside him the woman he loves makes fine dramatic entertainment.

Gable plays the role of Parnell, the only man capable of leading the Irish and persuading England's parliament to give his country the Home Rule government for which so much blood was shed. His life is devoted to relieving his country's suffering until, one night, he sees Katie O'Shea played by Miss Loy, in an opera box. A few days later Mrs. O'Shea, who pays her husband to stay away from her, goes to Parnell at her husband's insistance, and invites him to dinner. O'Shea, a member of parliament, carries Parnell's favor. The moment they meet settles their destines, and love sweeps them on. Parnell has a heart ailment that forces him to leave London for a rest and Katie takes him to her country home which is presided over by her wealthy aunt, Miss Oliver, and there he recovers. Katie finds the evidence which clears Parnell of the Phoenix Park murders which are laid to him by conniving opponents. Alan Marshall, as the unscrupulous husband from whom Katie estranged, attempts to use Parnell's friendship with his wife to force Parnell to appoint him to an important position in Parliament. Repulsed, he bides his time until the night Parnell is to have dinner with Gladstone, whose promised support of the Home Rule bill assures Irelands' victory, and then files suit for divorce, naming Parnell. Katie insists that she defend the suit, but to Parnell the divorce means Katie's freedom and he will not make any defense. That a man's private life is his own, is Parnell's conviction. Gladstone will not support the bill with Parnell embroiled in scandal as its leader, and all but a few staunch men who know that without Parnell Ireland's cause is lost, desert him. At a last meeting he suffers a serious heart attack and against the advice of a physician that he must not be moved, he insists on going to his beloved Katie and he dies in her arms.

A Pete Smith novelty, "starring Fred Perry, and a Silly Symphony, "Mother Pluto," are unusually good additions to the bill.—H. H.

Your Health

BY DR. R. S. COPELAND

Dropsy.

MOST PERSONS look upon "dropsy" as a disease. In reality, it is not a disease, but is the result of some disturbance in the body. It is what the doctors call a "symptom," a sign of a disorder. The word is used for an effusion of fluid into the tissues or cavities of the body. If the tissues are firm and healthy they contain only a slight amount of fluid. It is so small that the effect is barely noticeable to the eye.

But when there is actual disease, the quantity of this fluid or water rapidly increases. Then it produces swelling of the feet, ankles, face and other external surfaces.

At the same time the internal organs are undergoing a swelling of the same sort. This may lead to the accumulation of excessive amounts of fluid within the abdominal cavity. Some times it is the heart sac or in the chest cavity. Of course, these are rare occurrences.

Nowadays we do not hear much about dropsy. This is probably due to the decrease in the number of cases of Bright's disease. Since dropsy is often associated with Bright's disease, it is frequently and mistakenly accepted as a sign of this particular and dreaded disorder. But as a matter of fact, the swelling may be associated with other diseases, notably disorders of the heart, blood vessels and liver.

Relief of discomfort may be given to the victim of dropsy. This is accomplished by withdrawal of the fluid by tapping, or by puncturing the swollen tissues and permitting the fluid to escape. Relief is sometimes accomplished by sweating and purging. But this is pretty harsh treatment and is usually avoided because of its weakening effect upon a debilitated system.

Any swelling of the ankles, feet or face is a sign that must never be ignored. It may be of a temporary nature, but if it persists it is nature's warning signal that must not be overlooked. Consult with your doctor who will advise you as to the necessary treatment.

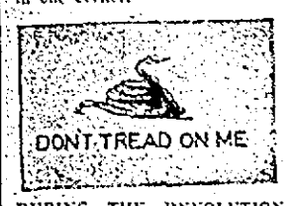
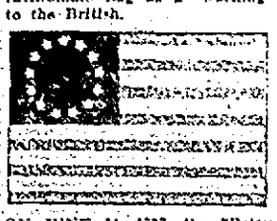
Doubters Fail To Take "First Flag" Honors from Betsy Ross

STORY OF FLAG

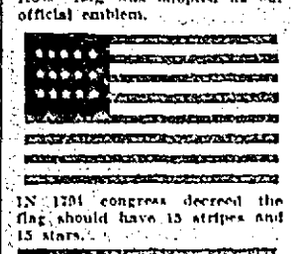
IN 1775 the new American fleet first flew the Grand Union flag which had the British union jack in one corner.



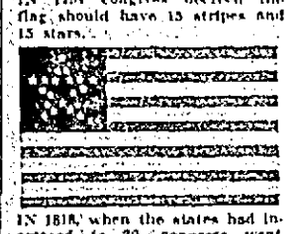
DURING THE REVOLUTION some contingents carried the rattlesnake flag as a "warning" to the British.



ON JUNE 14, 1777, the "Betsy Ross" flag was adopted as our official emblem.



IN 1791 congress decreed the flag should have 15 stripes and 15 stars.



IN 1818, when the states had increased to 20, congress went back to 13 stripes but provided for the addition of a new star for each succeeding state.

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE
Associated Press Writer.

WASHINGTON, June 14—Historians and flag authorities will tell you (sotto voce) that Philadelphia's pretty Betsy Ross didn't make the first American flag.

But the romantic legend lives on 160 years after the Stars and Stripes became the official emblem.

Although the experts can cite lack of substantial evidence in support of the Ross saga, they are not shouting their doubts from the housetops. It might stir up a patriotic hornet's nest. Besides, they don't know for sure who should get the credit.

Betsy's Version.

A common version of the Betsy Ross story, as she handed it down to her descendants, is that a committee of congress composed of George Washington, Robert Morris and Col. George Ross, uncle of Betsy's husband, called at her upholstery shop in Philadelphia and asked her to make the new flag.

Betsy's banner supposedly was presented to congress late in June, 1776, before the signing of the declaration of independence.

Records Silent.

Historians challenge the Ross story primarily because the journals of congress and other records of the period contain no reference to it.

They doubt also whether congress would have ordered the flag before the colonies had severed their ties with England.

If Washington had had any connection with it, argues Col. James A. Moss, president-general of the United States flag association, he surely would have mentioned it in his copious letters.

Philadelphia newspapers, Moss adds, which naturally would have been proud of Mrs. Ross, carry no account of the story.

Congressman Mentioned.

One authority, the late Admiral George H. Greble, said that the flag designer probably never will be known.

Another authority, Capt. Byron McCandless, believes the most likely person is Francis Hopkinson, New Jersey delegate to congress who was a member of the marine committee which adopted the flag June 14, 1777.

The records show that in 1778 Hopkinson wrote the board of admiralty requesting "a quarter cask of the public wine" as compensation for his designs of a great seal of the United States and other devices for the continental government.

But whether the flag he mentioned was the original of Old Glory has never been established—and the Betsy Ross legend lives on.

A weatherproofing compound developed at Leland Stanford university preserves adobe bricks against decay and makes them available for building purposes in any climate.

OBSERVE FLAG DAY AT AUXILIARY MEET

Flag day was observed by the reading of a history of the American flag and the proper ways in which it should be displayed, by Mrs. L. M. Elkenbary at a meeting of the auxiliary to Bird-McGinnis Post No. 162, American Legion, Friday night at the Legion Dugout. Mrs. Edna Covault was enrolled. Announcement was made of a joint meeting with the post June 25, at which time the program will be in charge of the Fidac chairman, Mrs. Clara Vermillion. Refreshments will be served. A report of approximately $350 raised in the annual poppy sale was made by Mrs. Harry Baldauf. Officers of the auxiliary will meet Wednesday at 2 p. m. at the Harding memorial to be photographed for the annual state publication of the women's organization.

AUXILIARY TO HOLD MEMORIAL SERVICE

Plans were made for the annual memorial service for deceased members, June 25, at a meeting of Pride of 35 Lodge No. 79, Auxiliary to the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, Friday afternoon in the Eagles hall. Relatives and friends of the deceased members will be invited to attend the services which will be arranged by a committee compored of Mrs. Daisy Haflick, Mrs. Ida Miller and Mrs. Emma Humes.

Preceding the memorial, which will be held on the regular meeting date of the auxiliary, there will be a dinner honoring members whose birthdays are in June. The dinner will be in charge of Mrs. Emma Humes, chairman of the social committee.

PATROLMEN MAKE CHECK ON TRAFFIC

One motorist was cited for an alleged driving violation during a two and one-half hour traffic check on route 30-S at the east city limits this morning by highway patrolmen from the Marion sub-station. Denzel E. Whipp, 44, of near Marion was cited for driving a truck with insufficient brakes. He was ordered to appear in municipal court Monday.

During the check, 209 passenger cars and 130 commercial vehicles were halted. Twenty-eight license corrections, 20 brake corrections, 28 light corrections and 10 miscellaneous corrections were ordered. Ten drivers were warned for driving without having drivers' permits with them. The check was conducted by Patrolmen D. D. Nicholas and D. L. Callentine.

REPORT IS ISSUED ON PROGRAM OF NYA

Eighty-Five Per Cent of All Money Spent Goes To Youths Employed.

Approximately 85 per cent of every dollar spent by the national youth administration goes to young people in the form of wages, according to a publication, "Facing the Problems of Youth," recently received by the local NYA office from Washington.

Under the direction of Miss Alma Strauch and Mrs. Blanche Knachel, 230 youths have been employed in Marion, Crawford, Morrow and Richland counties by the NYA organization in the last six months. In Marion the NYA office is on the second floor of the Y. M. C. A. building.

Financial assistance, the pamphlet asserts, is only a small part of what the organization, now approaching the close of its second year, offers youths.

Rather than offer permanent employment of out-of-school youths NYA seeks to prepare them for steady employment in private industry. To do this, each project is set up with a certain objective. Most important among these is the development of such work traits as punctuality, proper mode of dress, adequate job vocabulary, proper attitude toward authority and toward fellow workers, adjustment to new assignments and habits of completing an assignment.

On each project standards of performing occupational activity comparable to those accepted in the industrial world are set up with an effort to develop each youth's skill to meet these standards.

Girl Scouts' Day Camp To Open Tuesday for 3 Weeks

"Rain, rain, go away, come again some other day...three weeks from now" was the silent word relayed to Jupiter Pluvius today by some 60 Girl Scouts anxious to start their day camp program Tuesday. If it rains tonight, or in the morning, opening of camp will be postponed, Miss Marguerite Hill, camp director, said today.

Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays for the next three weeks will find the annual Abigail Harding Lewis day camp in session in the Vernon Heights park acres on the east side of the boulevard—if it doesn't rain.

Last year's daily attendance averaged 48. This year the girls have been talking up the fun of day camping and the interest evidenced has led those in charge to believe the camp will attract 60 or more girls this season.

A full day's program of activities has been outlined by Miss Hill and her assistant, Miss Jean Witt. From 9 to 9:30 there will be games, a court of honor and patrol meetings.

Unit activities will occupy the next two hours. The girls will busy themselves with archery, tennis, nature study, tramping and trailing games, exploring, pioneering sketching or dramatics, in charge of the following councillors: Miss Clarice Marshall, sketching; Miss Lois Hall, dramatics; Miss Witt and Miss Gertrude Stuart, archery, tennis; Miss Ruth Turner, nature study, exploring, and tramping and trailing games, Miss Emily Woltel pioneering. Miss Maria Johnson will have charge of all handicraft.

Girls will provide their own lunches which will be eaten between 11:30 and 12:30. Milk either plain or chocolate will be furnished by the camp. From 12:30 to 1 will be a rest period when the girls will get together for songs and stories. Two hours, from 1 to 3, will be given over to "interest groups," for study of archery, handicraft, sketching, dramatics and nature.

Camp will close at 4, following an hour of unit activities, court of honor and patrol meetings.

The camp will be divided into three units, each named for an Indian tribe. Mrs. F. L. Thomas, assisted by Miss Elsie Knapp will be leader of the Wyandots, Mrs. J. E. Scandling will lead the Navajos, and Mrs. Fred Allen will be leader of a unit which has not as yet been named.

FIGHT, BOAT RACES TO BE BROADCAST

After it gets the broadcast of the Joe Louis-Jimmy Braddock fight on June 22 at Chicago out of the way, radio will attend to the next big sporting event, the America's cup races at Newport, R. I. All three networks will participate from boats, airplanes and blimps.

Programs tonight: Flag Day ceremonies at Capitol in Washington at 8:30 over WOR-MBS; Sen. Joseph F. McGuffey on the President's merchant marine program at 9:30 over WJZ-NBC.

Tuesday: Tree planting at the Dawes arboretum Licking county at 2:30 over WJZ-NBC.

Author of New Star Serial Knows Life on the Range

Give Marie de Nervaud a good cowpony and a western saddle, and she'll be perfectly at home in the rangeland of Montana and Idaho, the setting of "Flame Trail," her western romance which will start June 16 as this paper's new serial.

Not only is her own background western—she is a native Californian, born in San Francisco—but the blood of pioneer ancestors runs in her veins. Her grandfather went to Oregon in '46, and to California in '49. He journeyed back to Philadelphia in '53, bringing his bride home to San Francisco via Panama. And there wasn't any canal in those days.

Miss de Nervaud's adventurous spirit took her overseas during the World war.

"Even though I couldn't ride any cowponies over there," she says, "I did get stationed where there were plenty of cowboys in khaki. So what I haven't learned about the west at first hand, I have heard at many strange places and moments behind the lines."

From Music to Writing

The first career of this weaver of western tales was musical. She left her beloved California to study in Paris with Harold Bauer. Later she established a flourishing music school in Boston.

"I guess the lure of writing was in my blood, and bound to come out sooner or later," Miss de Nervaud smiles and pushes back the mass of auburn hair which is like Kay's, her game little heroine in "Flame Trail."

"Ever since I can remember, I've had the urge to follow in the footsteps of my grandmother, Hannah Lloyd Neall—the one who sailed to California in '53. She really played quite a part in the early literary life of San Francisco.

Burned Her Bridges

After 10 years of teaching, Miss de Nervaud decided the time had come to "take a chance." She burned her bridges, gave 73 pupils into other hands and moved to New York to write. That first year she earned a total of $9 for an article in the Boston Transcript.

Since then, magazines and publishers have printed a great many of her stories and novels of the west. She lays them in three locales: the wild, picturesque country south of Monterey, where the coast range meets the Pacific, and old Spanish traditions persist; the rangeland of Montana and Wyoming; the mesas of the southwest.

Miss de Nervaud is now Mrs. Henry W. Dun Jr. She lives in Connecticut, where she combines writing with the strenuous and exciting job of bringing up four children.

"Last summer we took the two older children and motored out to California," she says. "So you see my allegiance to the west still holds, even if I don't live there any longer."

MURDER ON THE BLUFF

By Esther Tyler

CHAPTER FIFTY-ONE
"I Have You Covered!"

M. FARRINGTON was dressed and waiting. I could see at a glance that she had been crying, but her mood was far from mellow.

"It's about time you put in an appearance, young man," she said curtly. "Where under the sun is Michael—or that Palmer girl? Am I to sit here all morning waiting for my breakfast?" No, mellow was not the word.

"I'm sorry, Aunt Martha. Mike's been having a bad time trying to dress himself. I sent him down to Gay to see if she couldn't calm him."

It was the wrong approach. "Calm him!" snorted M. Farrington. "That little red-headed thing has had him on pins and needles ever since she got here. How is Barbara?"

"Sleeping." I tried to make my voice soothing. "She'll be O. K. when she wakes up."

"Hmmph! Under the circumstances you might find a better word for it. I suppose that if I am very good my chauffeur will allow me to see her for a few moments just before dinner. Come along, James! Now what is the matter?" I was hesitating with my hand on the door.

"Aunt Martha, there's something I wanted to talk to you about before the police arrive."

Her eyes blazed indignantly. "Police? Is that quite necessary? You may tell George Foster that I won't allow it!"

"I'm afraid it will be out of his hands," I said. "He can help with the papers, of course, but—Aunt Martha, we ought to establish the fact that Higgins was a suicide, before the police get here—and—and—"

"Don't stutter. I shan't scream. And what?"

"And in order to prove that, we must prove that the bullet which killed him came from the gun in his hand."

Her eyes widened. "Then find the bullet, James!" she said sharply.

"I've been trying to. It—it just isn't there."

"Nonsense! It must be. Did you look in his head?"

"It passed right through his head."

Her chin went, if anything, a little higher. "James, you couldn't find anything if it were tied to the end of your nose. Never could. Open that door."

She was something to look at, I can tell you, with the tears still wet on her face, striding down that hall like a major-general. The rest of us might be ready for sanatoriums before we were through, but not Martha Farrington.

"Children should be brought up with a little self-reliance," she stated. "If a man is shot, he is shot by a bullet. Obvious."

"Yes, ma'am," I said meekly, and we paraded forthwith into Higgins' room.

'Stand Over There'

Her face grew grim as she caught sight of that bed. But her voice was ragged.

"Poor Higgins," she said. "Poor, loyal fellow. James!"

The last word came with such unexpected force as to make me jump. "Yes, ma'am?" I said in the involuntary tone of my youth.

"Were you the first person to find him?"

"Yes. He was lying just as he is now."

"I see." Her face screwed in thought. "He was about your height. Stand over there by the wall."

"Now then a man about to kill himself is in no state of mind to sit down. He must have been standing here." She suited the action to the word, with his gun in his hand like this." She stood facing the bed dramatically. "He pulls the trigger, is spun completely around by the force of the explosion, and lands on his back on the bed. The bullet must be over your head there, James."

The blanket over the dead man's form had not been moved. From the moment that I realized that M. Farrington, who had known Higgins all his life, was depicting that death scene with the imaginary revolver held in her right hand, my limbs had gone suddenly stiff. Even after she had finished speaking, I could not move. Her voice [illegible]

"Don't move, James! As the expression goes, I have you covered!"

She had reached under the blanket and removed the revolver from Higgins' hand. It was trained straight at my heart.

I muttered something that didn't make sense.

"Quite so, James." Her smile was unpleasant. "You see it happens that my brother Norman was not insane. Barbara did not believe that. I would have showed her quite convincingly if that fool Higgins had held his tongue. Norman could not see that he might better be dead than back in that place. Therefore, I showed him. As for Judith, she was in the way. So was Higgins, much as I regret that fact. So are you, James. Therefore—"

But she never finished. I made the most perfect football charge of my career. We went down in a heap together, simultaneously with the deafening report of the revolver. Long before I managed to get to my feet I knew that Martha Farrington was dead.

The Skipper Talks

I stood at the living-room window, gazing out across the cluttered sweep of lawn and drive toward the gut where a boat from the mainland should be appearing. Breakfast, such as we could manage to choke down, was over. William and Annie were clearing it away.

Between Michael and Gay on the davenport, sat the Skipper. Sue should have been in bed, but we could do nothing with her. A very short time would bring relief, and with it a doctor. There was a weird sense of unreality in the room, a sense of awakening from a bad nightmare, an illusion intensified by the Skipper's quiet voice.

"Your grandfather, Mike, was a pretty unlucky person. He was only a kid when he married Martha Waterman. Pretty little thing. I've been told—good family. They had about five years of happiness and then—with two kids on their hands—it developed that the wife was insane.

"They didn't put people in asylums those days if they could possibly help it. He kept her here for three years. And then in one of these winter storms, she got away from her nurse and went over the bluff. She was killed.

"He got over it in time. There were two kids, both seeming—er—normal and healthy. Eventually he married my mother, whom he had known all his life. I was born about a year later, and the three of us grew up together. For a long time the other kids didn't even know that my mother wasn't theirs. But servants talk and there was gossip in the village. They found out and they brooded about it. When Norman was about 18 and Martha about 20, he began to show unmistakable signs of insanity. Whether he had actually inherited it, or brought it on by brooding and fear, we never knew. Anyway, it was there.

"I was about 13 at the time and I didn't understand much about it, but I knew that Father was in a terrible state. Remembering what happened to the mother, he clapped the youngster into a private nursing home. I think that when Father died, he was still expecting Norm to be cured. He never was. He came home once for a short time, but we couldn't manage him. We sent him back and he never came out again until a few months ago.

"Martha had always been crazy about the boy. When they sent him away, they had a time with her, I can tell you. She accused Father of trying to kill him, among other things. Insisted that he had also murdered her mother. But the doctors assured Father that she was merely neurotic—not in the least insane. Father always felt that Martha's attitude had a great deal to do with my mother's death. But that was absurd. My mother died of pneumonia shortly after Norm was taken ill, and that finished Father. He drew into his shell and left us to our own devices.

"I'm not trying to excuse myself now. I just want Mike in particular to understand how things were. You see, the servants had adored my mother. Consequently, they took great delight in pampering me. And Martha, for such a proper soul, got a big kick out of my escapades.

"And then—" The Skipper's voice faltered but immediately picked up again. "Then something happened. There was a youngster I used to play with—Jack Bilnshop. I used to golf with him, gun with him, boat with him. We'd always been cronies—"

Again the Skipper paused.

The Skipper tells how Jude met her death, tomorrow.

A 100,000-volt X-ray machine mounted on wheels has been invented to detect flaws in steel pipe as much as two inches thick, making records on photographic paper held against the inside of pipes.

1936 Dog License Record Broken with 5,257 Sold

Last year's record sale of 5,253 dog tags was broken Saturday as County Auditor Harry V. Mounts sold four permits, bringing this year's total to 5,257. At this time last year only approximately 4,500 tags had been sold.

Breaking of the record, while meaning more fees for the county, means a $2.50 steak dinner for County Dog Warden Elmer Ullom as a result of a wager made with Deputies County Auditor M. C. Clements and C. W. Sifritt several weeks ago. Mr. Clements has set no date for paying off the wager and threatens to wait until the end of the year.

Mr. Ullom has been one of the most active wardens in the history of the county, taking office in the middle of 1935. Last year's permit sales yielded $6,460.50, as compared with $5,729.25 for 4,088 tags in 1935, and $4,910 for 3,020 tags in 1934.

Sheep claims dropped to $2,017 last year as compared with $2,336 in 1935 and $3,433 in 1934, testifying to the vigilance of Mr. Ullom in checking all claims and impounding stray dogs.

SHEEP CLAIMS FOR WEEK TOTAL $71.50

Sheep claims totaling $71.50 were filed with Elmer Ullom, county dog warden, during the week ended Saturday. F. C. Wilson of near LaRue reported four ewes killed and 10 injured by two collie dogs and turned in a claim of $65.50. The two dogs were seized by Ullom.

A claim of $6 for two lambs was made by E. M. Myles, also of near LaRue. Ullom also reported that 13 dogs, including the two sheep killers, were impounded last week.

Salads Recommended by Mrs. Harris for Summer

Dear friends in Marion: June, July, August! Summer days are upon us and warm days call for salads just as surely as July fourth calls for flags and picnics.

Of course, you may be one of those salad lovers who serves a salad every day all the year 'round. Whether you toss a green salad in French dressing, or mold one of gelatine with fruits or vegetables, or combine one of meat or potatoes for your main dish, will depend on the temperature, your taste, or perhaps the contents of the ice-box.

There is one invariable rule for successful salads. The weather and you yourself may be wilty, but the salad must be crisp and should be served direct to the table from the refrigerator.

Another important point with salads is the seasoning. Correct seasoning is as necessary for salads as for soups, and the wise cook will sample the contents of her salad bowl carefully before serving, remembering that taste saves waste. Paprika will add color as well as flavor to salads, and chopped chives, celery seed, parsley, herbs and spices add piquancy.

Early morning marketing is essential to the success of a green salad, for then the home manager has a wide choice of fresh, crisp materials. When they are washed, prepared and immediately transferred to the chill seclusion of the refrigerator, the flavor and quality are far better and the greens last much longer.

Scientists agree that salad greens, particularly escarolle, are rich in vitamin A qualities that build and maintain bodily vigor and resistance to minor ailments.

Energy Builder

Dr. H. C. Sherman of Columbia university, regarded by other food experts as the country's leading authority on the relation between vitamins and health, lists escarolle as something that not only helps to keep people healthy at any age, but as an aid toward extending energy into the rocking-chair age.

Other materials to put in the salad, all rich in vitamin A, are lettuce, tomato, spinach and grated carrot. Of course, too, there are celery, chicory, endive, appetizing watercress, cucumbers, peppers and radishes. Such cooked vegetables as green beans, beets and peas combine well with green salads and with the gelatine molds.

Rub the salad bowl with a cut clove of garlic and shred the lettuce, or break apart the greens. Cut the vegetables into pieces of suitable size. Then add the French dressing slowly, so that when the mixture is tossed lightly with a wooden fork and spoon, every bit of the salad will be marinated before serving.

As for the dressing, harken to this advice from the presiding genius in one of New York's leading restaurants:

"Be a spendthrift with the oil, a miser with the vinegar and a madman when you toss the salad together."

Expert Seasoning

This food genius uses three tablespoons of oil to one of vinegar, half a teaspoon of sugar, a quarter teaspoon of mustard, salt and pepper to taste. Some cooks add a small clove of garlic directly to the dressing if the flavor is liked.

Another idea is to rub the salad bowl with garlic, pour in the dressing and leave it in the bowl five minutes before putting in the greens, which are improved by tearing into small pieces, rather than cutting. After mixing lightly with a fork, let the salad stand in the refrigerator ten minutes before serving.

Old-fashioned mustard dressing is essential to American potato salad. Other aids are a few pieces of crisply fried bacon, diced cucumbers, sliced hard boiled eggs, celery, parsley and a small quantity of finely-chopped onion.

A cream dressing, or fruit juices, belong with the fruit salad and mayonnaise to head the list for jellied salads.

Peanut butter is making its bow in dressings and in fruit salads and many types of cheese are creeping directly into the salad bowl, instead of looking on from separate dish. Don't forget to serve nuts with fruit salad as a garnish.

There are endless variations in molded salads, and they are popular throughout the Summer because they may be prepared in advance and stored in the icebox. Nothing tastes better than tomato aspic on a hot day. With a basis of lemon gelatine, the filling may be anything from chopped stuffed olives and celery to assorted, left-over vegetables, garnished with strips of pimiento.

The color, flavor and food values of grated raw carrot should not be overlooked and, raw, chopped cabbage is as good molded in gelatine as it is in a mixed vegetable salad.

For a quick and festive salad, try a mixture of endive and sliced beets, served very cold with French dressing. Both color and flavor combination are excellent. And don't forget the old trick of storing two or three hard-boiled eggs in a bowl with cooked beets and diluted vinegar and seasonings. The sliced, pink-bordered eggs look so attractive and refreshing on a hot night.

Watch the weekly column for Summer salad recipes, and vary them to suit your own taste. They will simplify hot weather cooking; they are a sure cure for menu-monotony.

RECIPE REQUESTS ANSWERED HERE

Applesauce Spice Cake

Cream one-third cup shortening. Add one cup sugar slowly, beating well. Add two-thirds cup seedless raisins. Mix and sift together two cups flour, one half teaspoon salt, one teaspoon soda, one teaspoon cinnamon, one-fourth teaspoon cloves, one-fourth teaspoon mace. Blend with creamed mixture.

This may be prepared in advance, if desired and stored in the refrigerator. When ready for baking, break up mixture. Beat one egg slightly and add to one cup thick applesauce. Then add to cake mixture. Mix thoroughly, pour into greased loaf cake pan and bake in moderate oven 40 to 50 minutes. One-third to one-half cup chopped nuts may be added to this recipe.

Stuffed Lamb Chops

Four large lamb chops, one cup crushed pineapple, one-half cup finely cut celery, one-half cup fine dry crumbs, two eggs, one-fourth cup milk, one-third cup flour, one-half cup pineapple juice, salt.

Select loin chops one inch thick and slit the chops through the center to the bone to form a pocket. Sprinkle with salt.

Prepare a filling, using crushed pineapple, celery and crumbs. Stuff chops and fasten securely with toothpicks. Make a batter with the flour, eggs and milk and beat until very smooth.

Dip each chop, covering well and fry immediately in deep fat heated to 350 degrees F. until a golden brown. Drain from fat, place in a baking dish, cover with pineapple juice and cover tightly. Bake in a 400 degree F. oven for one hour. The fruit juice gives the chops a delicate flavor and makes this a real party treat.

SUGGESTIONS FOR SALAD DRESSINGS

Many are the variations which lend fresh fivor and piquancy to the French salad dressing.

The basic recipe for dressing can be altered to suit the mood, the meal and the taste.

For onion flavoring, add one-half teaspoon grated onion.

For the fruit salad, use grapefruit and orange juice for the acid and add one teaspoon powdered sugar.

If you like the flavor of garlic, rub the bowl or jar used for dressing with a cut clove of garlic.

Roquefort cheese dressing makes an interesting salad course after a roast. Crumble two or three tablespoons of roquefort cheese with a fork and stir in French dressing gradually, beating it in.

Then there is the chiffonade dressing, which is so tasty on plain lettuce or watercress salad. Add one teaspoon each of grated onion, chopped beets, green pepper, pimiento and chopped hard-cooked egg yolks and whites.

For Russian French dressing, add two tablespoons of chilisauce, one tablespoon chopped green pepper and one-half teaspoon grated onion.

For pepper dressing, add two tablespoons pepper hash, or any minced pepper relish to the French dressing.

Substitute lemon juice for part of vinegar in recipe or try the dressing with no vinegar and lemon juice with the olive oil.

Fruit Salad Dressing

One-third cup each pineapple juice, orange juice, lemon juice and sugar; one egg, cream, pinch salt, one teaspoon cornstarch.

Mix dry ingredients. Add fruit juices cook until smooth and pour into the well-beaten egg. Add cream or whipped cream if desired. Chill thoroughly.

Easy Mayonnaise

One egg, two tablespoons sugar, one and one-half teaspoons salt, two teaspoons dry mustard, four tablespoons cornstarch, one-eighth teaspoon paprika, three-fourths cup oil, one cup water.

Put egg, sugar, seasoning, vinegar and oil in mixing bowl, but do not stir. Make a paste by mixing the cornstarch with one-half cup water, add additional one-half cup water and cook over slow fire, stirring constantly until it boils and clears. Add hot cornstarch mixture to ingredients in mixing bowl and beat briskly with egg beater. Cool before serving.

Cooked Salad Dressing

One-half teaspoon mustard, one and one-half teaspoons each salt and sugar, one and one-half tablespoons flour, one-eighth teaspoon paprika, few grains cayenne, one cup milk, four tablespoons vinegar, one and one-half tablespoons shortening.

Mix mustard, salt, sugar, flour, paprika and cayenne. Add the beaten egg and mix well. Add milk and vinegar and cook over hot water until thick. Add shortening and stir until melted.

For a whipped cream dressing, lightly fold in one-half cup whipped cream to foundation recipe. For a snappy salad add three tablespoons prepared horseradish to the foundation recipe. For a tarragon dressing, use two tablespoons vinegar and add two tablespoons tarragon vinegar.

Cottage Cheese Moves Into Major Food Class

CREAMY COOLNESS

Sliced cucumbers around the green of the lime gelatin and pear mold enhance the appeal of the cottage cheese mound in this salad. The cheese may be topped with mayonnaise.

BY MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE
Associated Press Writer

There was a time when a glass dish of cottage cheese was put on the table as an accessory, along with the sugar bowl, the salt shaker and the pickle canister.

But cottage cheese has been graduated into the major food class and is winning more and more favor as a meat substitute.

Especially suitable for hot weather meals, it may be combined with other foods to make delicious salads, entrees, sandwiches and canapes.

Because it is nourishing and easy to digest, as well as economical, it often is recommended for very young children and elderly invalids—as well as for healthy adults who are especially fond of it.

Adapted To Variation

Cottage cheese may be seasoned in a number of ways, providing it is not "doctored" so much it loses its identity.

Try adding a little minced chives, chopped onions, parsley, green peppers, pimientos, olives or pickles—one at a time or in combinations.

Roll balls of cottage cheese in chopped nuts, parsley, celery, pimiento, cress or other salad greens. Such balls may be served with other salads or grouped together, topped with mayonnaise and served as a salad themselves.

A little gelatin added to a cup of cottage cheese and then placed in pimiento or green pepper cups, chilled and cut into thin crossway slices makes an effective garnish for cold cuts or salads.

Cheese balls placed in the center of pineapple slices or pressed into the halves of peaches, pears or apricots also form a tasty summer salad. (Thick French dressing should be served with it.)

Cottage cheese mixed with a relish, spread over toast squares or crackers, garnished well and served plain or slightly browned may be offered as canapes.

How To Mold It

To make a mound of cheese for the center of a fruit plate combination or other dish, press the cheese lightly into a cup and then quickly unmold it.

To make a tasty filling for graham or Boston brown bread sandwiches mix the cottage cheese with a little cream. Blend it with relishes and mayonnaise for filling the spicy type of sandwich. Or mix it with raisins, dates, or figs—to spread over graham crackers.

To form a highly flavored filling for stuffed tomatoes, add chutney, mustard pickles, spiced pears, or catsup to generous portions of cheese.

For tea-time treats mix some of the cheese with preserves and spread it over crackers. The latter may or may not be toasted.

Cumuber Pear Aaple

1 package lime-flavored gelatin
1¼ cups hot water
2 tablespoons vinegar
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup drained, diced cucumber
1 cup diced canned pears

Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Add vinegar and ½ teaspoon salt. Chill until slightly thickened. Season cucumber with ½ teaspoon salt; add pears. Fold into slightly thickened gelatin. Turn into ring mold. Chill until firm. Unmold. Fill center with cottage cheese. Garnish with slices of cucumber and crisp lettuce. Serves 6.

Marriage Meddlers

BY ADELE GARRISON

Dicky Agrees to Take Boys on Fishing Trip With Him.

AT DICKY'S query as to whether Katherine had something for Williams to do, I knew that he had thrown me a cue with a fervent prayer that I would be quick enough of perception to pick it up. The misery-filled eyes of the two small boys fastened upon me in sudden hope—for, it seems, children are psychic to any change of mood in their elders—spurred me to instant reply.

"I am afraid she has," I said with apparent reluctance. "She depends a great deal upon the aid of Williams, you know."

"Then that settles it," Dicky said with an air of great decision. "I'm not going to spoil my own day or have Bill and Hank spoil theirs by staying home to look after these young hellions. Nothing can happen to them on the boat when all three of us are there. We'll just take them along — on one condition!"

He turned to his son and nephew with a gravely judicial air.

"You're not coming along on this trip because you deserve the pleasure," he told them. "You're only coming because it is more convenient to look after you on the boat than to leave you at home."

Boys Are Relieved

He took a deep breath—I guessed it was more a gulp of sympathy—and hurried on.

"Now, it's going to rest with yourselves what sort of day you have. If you can keep from fighting each other in the disgraceful fashion you staged a little while ago, and promise to be careful, we'll let you fish and go around the boat just as if nothing had happened. And nobody will know that you're being watched every minute by one of us three. Another thing. You're never to be together, unless we all five are together. If we grownups separate one of you is to come with one group and the other one is to go with the others. Do you understand?"

They gulped for breath, found it, and answered him with voices that fairly lilted their joy at this unexpected reprieve.

"Oh, sure, we understand!" they chorused, and then very meekly Junior added, "Thank you, Dad—and we'll behave."

"Thank you, Uncle Dicky," Roderick dutifully echoed. "We'll behave."

"See that you do," Dicky said sternly. "Now go out on the bank there. Do whatever you wish, just so long as you stay away from each other. One of you go to one side of the cove; the other, on the other side. And if I catch you speaking or even looking at each other the rest of the day, I'll bring you in and put you to bed. Get along with you now. Remember, somebody in the house here is watching you every minute. Don't you dare to go out of sight."

"We won't," they said meekly.

and their exit from the room savored more of a crawl than a walk, so utterly subdued were they. But the look of utter, crushed despair in their faces had vanished. Life was sad enough for them, patently, but it was not the bitter cup it had been but a minute or two before.

"Well," Dicky said, looking at me quizzically as the door closed behind the small boys. "Are you satisfied?"

Explains Action

"Am I satisfied?" I repeated with an air of bewilderment, although I knew very well what he meant. Dicky demands a whipping boy for any doubtfully wise action of his, and he generally gives the position to me.

"I could see you were having the jitters because you thought I was piling it on too thick," he said coolly, "so I thought I'd pull in my horns a bit before you let your sympathy get the better of you and put in a plea for those young rascals. That would have been ruinous for discipline, you know; it would have nullified everything I had accomplished."

His tone was so loftily superior that I had an insane desire to throw some thing at him. But I repressed it, as I did the impulse to remind him that he had weakened in his determination to deprive the small boys of the fishing trip, tossing me the cue which would "save face."

Instead, I meekly murmured something about his having acted wisely. After a long, curious stare at me, for he well knew what lay beneath my apparent demureness, he turned toward the door.

"I'll get out my big rods and look them over for tomorrow," he said. "So long!"

In Ohio History

(From the J. H. Galbraith collection of Ohio histories, written for The Associated Press.)

INDIANS NONPLUSED

In at least two instances, related in the chronicles of the conflicts between Whites and Indians in Ohio, the Indians were nonplused by the artificialities of the white men.

In one instance a white man captured by Indians and about to be killed, removed his false teeth from his mouth. Holding them in his hands, he made sinister grimaces toward them, so frightening his captors that they fled, thinking him a demon.

In the other the discovery that their prisoner wore a wig was made too late to be turned to his advantage, for he had already been fatally shot. The Indian who had shot him rushed up with his hunting knife in hand prepared to take the dead man's scalp and was greatly surprised when the hair came away without use of the knife.

Marriage Is a Serious Business.

Ohio has nothing but good wishes for Wellsburg, whose thriving marriage business has just been cut off short by a new West Virginia law requiring three days' notice of intent to marry.

It doesn't want to put the little West Virginia town off the map, but for years it has been painfully aware that Wellsburg's strategic location on the map has enabled it to engage in a dubious business.

Of course, practitioners of the art of quick marriage in Wellsburg can't be expected to see things that way. As they look at it, marriage is something that's going to be done anyway, so why not please the customers.

That's an old issue. In recent years, more and more states have been swinging toward the position that marriage applicants are more than customers—that they are persons with definite social responsibilities which should be undertaken only after careful consideration.

Making them wait three days after applying for a license isn't an unreasonable hardship. It provides at least a minimum guarantee of protection against the perils of marrying in haste and repenting in leisure.

Ohio wants to feel that West Virginia, in passing its three-day law, really understood why this state has been concerned over the high divorce rate among couples who eloped across the river.

If and when all states get together on this problem, marriage will become more like the serious business it is. Newlyweds who waited three days between decision and vows have something more than an outside fighting chance to make a go of it.

Lords of the Realm.

Earl Baldwin of Bewdley—Stanley Baldwin, until he stumbled uncertainly through the ceremonies which inducted him last Wednesday—now sits serenely in the British house of lords.

He arrived there by a lifetime of satisfactory service and the reward of his king. He will have nothing to do in particular; except to keep an eye on things and make a speech if he feels like it.

He won't have to run for reelection; therefore, he can say what is in his mind. There will be no babies to kiss, no irate constituents to pacify, no logs to roll. The house of lords is about as close to heaven as a politician can expect to get while he remains on earth.

Of course, not one of them would mention it, but a lot of U. S. senators must turn green with envy when a thing like this reminds them that they are here today, but likely to be gone tomorrow.

There Go the British.

The method of claiming land in polar regions is simplicity itself. The country whose explorers get there first with the most flags has the edge.

Of course, the flags soon are lost in snowdrifts. The explorers return, however, and their accounts of what they have done become the official basis for claims.

This has become important because the British have moved to extend their empire at the south pole. The imperial conference, now in session, has adopted the report of its polar committee favorable to claiming large areas of the "lost continent" the south pole.

Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, whose antarctic expeditions have claimed extensive areas for the United States, sees no reason for controversy. He takes the position that there is plenty of room for all. What is there, then, to be concerned about?

Admiral Byrd explains: "We discovered enough coal there to supply the world, coal that no one else has ever seen....It will be a long time before this coal is utilized, and then only if the more easily accessible supply runs out."

The antarctic, in other words, has become something more than an ice bound region for adventuresome explorers. The British, prompted by Australians and New Zealanders, are taking it seriously at last.

No Illusion of Unity.

It used to be a common notion among Americans that the Soviet Union was to be specially feared because it represented a solid phalanx of doctrinaires marching against capitalism. The notion still is prevalent.

But it persists these days in the face of much contrary evidence. At the moment, the Soviet Union is buzzing with rumors set flying by evidence of a sweeping purge of the red army. The Trotskyist trials recently disclosed the extent of division among the doctrinaires.

Communist officials are switched, demoted and promoted, with astonishing frequency. The secret police seem to have as much to do as ever before. The Communist party still is a minority in Russia.

The illusion of unity, in short, is being blown away by evidence that Russia's 170,000,000 inhabitants are no more capable of agreeing than the same number of persons anywhere else, nor are they any more susceptible to so-called modern methods of terrorism to make them conform to a common standard of conduct.

The President And His Duty

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1937, by The Marion Star

WASHINGTON, June 14—The President of the United States is charged by the Constitution with the following obligation: "He shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed."

For this reason, the inquiry begun by the senate postoffice committee to determine whether the postal officials have been derelict in their duty in delivering mail covers only one angle of the interference with deliveries of United States mail in the middle west strike areas.

The revised statutes of the United States provide:

"Whoever shall knowingly and wilfully obstruct or retard the passage of the mail, or any carriage, horse, driver, or carrier, or car, or steamboat, or other conveyance or vessel carrying the same, shall be fined not more than $100, or imprisoned not more than six months, or both."

So while the postal officials may contend that they did not wish to deliver mail in areas where there might be danger and that in doing so they were acting in accordance with precedent which allows postal carriers a certain discretion, there is no such flexibility with respect to the person who acts up the obstacles or obstructions constituting the dangers complained of by the post office department.

Did any strikers in Ohio obstruct the delivery of the mails? Did any of the pickets notify the postoffice employes that, if foodstuffs were delivered through the picket lines, the trucks or autos or vehicles carrying the mails might be held up? If they did, then the federal district attorneys have been remiss in their duty in failing to cause the arrest of the persons who threatened or actually did obstruct the delivery of the mails. And if the federal district attorneys did not execute the laws of the United States, the responsibility then rests on the President of the United States, whose obligation it is to see to it that the attorney general issues the necessary instructions for prosecution.

Postmasters As Witnesses

Apparently, the Ohio postmasters themselves would be material witnesses before grand juries, for whatever was said to them by strikers or their agents with respect to what mail matter would or would not be admitted to the strike plants becomes important testimony as bearing on whether the laws of the United States have been violated.

Unless the laws applicable to the delivery of the mails are enforced, all sorts of complications may ensue. The fact that the chairman of the Democratic national committee is at the head of the postoffice department may have encouraged some of the strikers, who are affiliated with organizations that contribute to political campaign funds, to believe that they could tamper with the mails and no prosecutions would follow. But the obligation for prosecuting violations of law rests not on the postmaster general, but on the President of the United States, who acts in such cases through the attorney general.

Many instances are being cited and the newspaper dispatches have been reporting several of them to the effect that threats of danger or violence were made by strikers in the event that mail was delivered. High postal officials have admitted as much in defending their course when refusing to deliver mail into what they consider danger zones.

The postoffice is equipped with inspectors who act as detectives in tracking down any violations of the postal laws, and it would not be a difficult task for them to discover just who has been threatening to retard the passage of the mails, whether the mails contain "irregular" or "normal" service. Once the names are obtained, the next step would be to present such names to the grand jury which has the duty of considering indictments.

There has been considerable sympathy with the feeling of the postal officials here that they ought not to send mail carriers or truck drivers into strike zones and risk bloodshed. Certainly, not one life should be risked unnecessarily, and especially if obedience to the laws of the United States can be obtained without bloodshed.

Nothing Done

Several days have passed since the first reports came of interference with the mails, but nothing has been heard about any prosecutions of the individuals who sought to retard the passage of the mails. In one case, a striker freely admits that he had an understanding with the postal officials whereby a certain package was permitted to go through the picket lines. This implies that the postal officials had knowledge of the intent of certain persons to violate the statutes of the United States.

Maybe the "revised statutes," as they are technically known to the legal profession, should be further revised to read as follows:

"Whoever shall knowingly and wilfully obstruct or retard the passage of the mail shall be fined not more than $100 or imprisoned but this statute shall not apply to obstructions or retardations of the mail addressed to employers if it should be the desire of labor unions to prevent the delivery of such mail."

This, in effect, is the way the statute has been interpreted thus far, but, under the oath of office taken by the President of the United States, the obligation is to "take care that the laws be faithfully executed" and the only laws referred to in the constitution are the laws as written.

Last week, attention was called in these columns to the failure of the President of the United States to see that the federal corrupt practices act, another important law of the United States, is enforced. Now the record shows failure also to enforce laws with respect to tampering with the mails. The Constitution does not say the President "may" take care that the laws be faithfully executed, but that the President "shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed." The wording is mandatory and not discretionary.

Thirsty Iron Horse

APPROXIMATELY 600 billion gallons of water are required annually to quench the thirst of the iron horse and for other purposes in connection with the operation of the railroad systems of this country, according to the Association of American Railroads.

This huge quantity of water would be sufficient to fill a channel 100 yards wide and 9 feet deep, extending from New York to San Francisco and return. If spread over the ground to a depth of one foot and frozen, it would provide a skating rink nearly 54 miles square.

It would meet the needs of the inhabitants of New York City for 2 years, or a city the size of Washington, D. C., for seventeen years.

In volume and weight, the quantity of water used by the railroads each year is greater than all other materials combined.

How It's Used

More than one half of the water is used for steam purposes. By the chemical treatment of this water in order to remove harmful ingredients which cause rust and scale to form on the inside of locomotive boilers, the railroads have brought about increased safety and efficiency in operation as well as a saving of millions of dollars annually.

While remarkable results have been achieved already, the railroads are now participating in a series of scientific studies to determine what further improvements can be made in their water supply. Some of these studies are being made at the experimental station of the United States bureau of mines at New Brunswick, New Jersey, while other studies are under way at Ohio State university, at the University of Michigan, and on many of the railroads.

Because of the large volume of water required for steam purposes by the railroads, and the fact the quantity of the water available for that purpose varies from day to day in the various localities with the quality in no two sections of the country the same, the problem of maintaining an adequate and suitable water supply is more complex than if only stationary engines were used.

Quality Important

Safety, dependability of service, and efficiency all depend in varying degrees on the sort of water obtained. In its natural state, the water in many streams contains acids and other ingredients which, unless neutralized or removed by chemical treatment, eventually would eat through steel boiler tubes; or, contains enough mineral substances such as lime and magnesia to cause excessive coating of the interior of boilers and tubes. Formation of a scale of only one eighth of an inch on the surface of a fire box or boiler tube, scientific experiments have demonstrated, results in an increase of about 10 per cent in the amount of fuel required, to generate steam. Rust and scale, besides causing a loss in fuel efficiency, are also factors in causing engine failures, due to water conditions.

By increasing the space available for water in locomotive tenders, the railroads also have been able to reduce the number of stops as well as the number of water stations required. The average water capacity of locomotive tenders some years ago was only 7,500 gallons. Since then, however, the capacity has been gradually increased so that today tenders with a capacity as great as 25,000 gallons are found on many roads. As a result, locomotives are now being operated for a longer distance before stops are necessary to replenish the water supply than was formerly the case when tenders had a smaller water capacity. The importance of these larger tenders can be best realized by the fact that a passenger locomotive uses from 70 to 150 gallons of water per mile, while a freight locomotive uses from 150 to 350 gallons per mile.

One Small Comma

IT was many years ago that the argument over the comma in the general welfare clause of the Constitution began, almost as soon as the Constitution was written, in fact.

Evidence now indicates the argument will run on no more. Associate Justice Cardozo, in the supreme court decision upholding constitutionality of federal insurance for the aged, ended it. The end really had been in sight ever since the court's adverse ruling on the agricultural adjustment act. In that ruling it established the broad interpretation of the general welfare clause which Justice Cardozo reaffirmed in the social security opinion.

The general welfare clause begins: "The congress shall have power: To lay and collect taxes, duties, imposts, and excises, to pay the debts and provide for the common defense and general welfare of the United States..."

Much depends on whether the comma after "excises" is stressed or ignored. If the comma is stressed, the clause seems to mean only that congress has power to lay and collect taxes, duties, imposts, excises and to provide for the common defense and general welfare. That's the narrow interpretation.

If the comma is ignored, the clause seems to mean that congress has power to lay and collect taxes, duties, imposts and excises for the purpose of providing for the common defense and general welfare. That's the broad interpretation.

Silly, isn't it, that one small comma should make so much difference? Yet, the Hamiltonians, the Jeffersonians and now the Roosevetlians all have had strong ideas about the matter, and they have quarreled furiously with those who refused to agree with them.

But Justice Cardozo says the comma which is there shouldn't be read in such a way as to prevent the government from providing for the general welfare through its taxing power in any way it chooses.

Two questions now must be asked.

If congress can do anything it chooses to provide for the general welfare, why have a Constitution?

What is the general welfare?

Today in Ohio History

By R. C. HALL
Written For The Associated Press

On Flag day—June 14—We should remember that what is now Ohio has not always enjoyed the blessing of the Stars and Stripes. This region has, according to various national claims, been figuratively, if not literally, under four flags.

First: According to the Spanish claim to all the western hemisphere by right of discovery, it was under the Spanish flag.

Second: According to the French claim by right of exploration, it was, for a time, under the French flag.

Third: By conquest it came under the English flag; and Fourth: By the Treaty of Paris at the close of the Revolutionary war, it passed under the Stars and Stripes.

Lewis Political Man On Horseback

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, June 14—Where the CIO is going is again a matter of speculative concern to all in official life here. Congressmen in the cloak room and officials around the cocktail shakers talk of little else these days.

The talk can be boiled down now to collective agreement, but a few things seem clear to all on both sides of the fence; namely:

The CIO can win elections in disputed steel plants and in most of the invaded industries. These elections probably will be won within the next six months. This will establish domination by CIO and accelerate the momentum of John Lewis as the political man on horseback.

It will not lead to the extinction of A. F. of L. craft unions, but merely relegate them temporarily. Few believe now that the railroad brotherhoods, the building trades, etc., will go out of existence.

Invades Politics

Lewis is taking labor into politics for the first time in American history. His movement is superficially social, but essentially political.

Until he threw his leg into the stirrup, the A. F. of L. was labor in this country. It was divided in political allegiance, and thoroughly individualistic and democratic. Thus, Lewis is doing what labor in Europe has done within this generation. He is taking it out of the social sphere into the political sphere.

A National Labor party is, therefore, inevitable in the course of time. For the present, Lewis is using the Democratic party for his purposes. But it will be only a matter of some few years until he absorbs the party (most authorities believe this is wholly improbable), or the party leadership becomes displeasing to Lewis (this may come as soon as 1940, if not before). The Future

Under the historic political setup in this country, any labor party must necessarily be a minority party, unless able to combine with the farmers. Such a combination of opposite interests has not been effected successfully in the modern world, even under Russian dictatorship. The conflicting interests of laborer and farmer in prices and wages are basic.

Furthermore, if the Lewis movement continues to follow the history of Europe, its troubles have just begun. In some European nations the political activities of labor took the form of Communism or were subjected partly to the spell of Communist leadership. In others (notably England) the formation of real labor parties led up to a climax of general strikes and down to anti-strike legislation. Both results were about the same as far as labor is concerned. In one case, it was hamstrung by Fascism and Communism; in the other, by restrictive legislation.

These views are not those of antagonists to the Lewis drive, but of some of the men in his own movement who have a realistic outlook for dangers ahead. They are accepted by the politicians only with the reservation that the man on horseback avoids gopher holes. The gophers have been busy lately. There is one particular hole in front of Lewis, of which he is not yet aware. If he suddenly finds himself on the ground, all present considerations will, of course, take the tumble with him.

Non-Commital

The Senator Joe Robinson appointment to the Van Devanter vacancy on the supreme court is supposed to be assured, but Robinson is not as sure as everyone else seems to be. He is making no bid for it. He told a friend: "If the President wants to offer me the appointment, he will do so without my asking him. And if he does, I will say whether or not I will accept."

Tailor-Made

The unknown authors of the power planning bill (who are Messrs. Cohen and Corcoran, in case you have not heard) seem to be working on the same basis as the Hollywood scenario writers. Apparently they are able to collaborate *with nearly anyone in writ*ing nearly any kind of bill, and have now written two opposing bills.

It happened this way: First, they worked with Senator Norris on one power planning bill, the one which Norris has now introduced in the senate. They handed it to Mr. R. before he left for Texas waters. He handed it back, advising them to write a new one for a different basic policy. They did. He liked that one. It has been introduced in the house by Representative Mansfield.

Breakfast Aboard the Normandie

BY O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, June 14—Diary: Betimes to the docks to breakfast aboardship with Purser Villier of the Normandie. And then poking about the water front and through the tumbling tenements of West 47th street. So home and found a sickening letter from an anonymous writer in Seymour, Ind., trying to justify his poisoning of dogs.

Hamish McLaurin, here on a flying trip from California, swooped, he having decided to shutter their Nyack home and reside permanently on the coast, as have so many lately. Then out and by the Ambassador to see Emily Ringling a moment and sat awhile with Dean Cornwell.

Tonight we had our first dinner served by the bonnie new Scottish maid, with a Will Fye accent. And so in the car, picking up the Henry Sells, and driving across Long Island and toward the sea. Afterward home and reading an autographed volume E. Phillips Oppenheim sent from the Island of Gurnsey.

* * *

Now and then I get the reactions of modern youth to the current what-ho by spending an evening with an Old Lyme Ct., friend who has two lively daughters, 18 and 19. From the girls I keep up in current heart throbs in the movies. I began to slough off in my cinema devotes about the time Adolphe Menjou reigned as the most debonaire of the so-and-sos. The next thing I knew Menjou was playing elderly parts, with all his spruceness gone. I trailed Clark Gable awhile watching him pitter-patter the yearning hearts. And just about the time he became the accepted Great Lover, along came Robert Taylor and chivvied up the deepest sighs of all. Last night I learned that Taylor is likely to be shunted to the background for still another newcomer I have never seen, named Wayne Morris. It is all very confusing.

Hoity toity note: Several fashionable hostesses no longer serve bread and butter at their dinners. They regard it as boorish-wah.

It is elegant fun to catch a dog in one of its rare serious moods and try to make it understand. It will cock its head, stiffen ears and often tremble as though striving to get the drift. I've just been conversing with my pooch—telling him what a pal he has been and that I'll never let him down. He knows it is all highly complimentary, but there is a wondering expression as he turns now and then to gaze off as though trying to penetrate something unfathomable. There's analogy there with mankind's striving for what is beyond.

One of the humane touches in Noel Coward's readable autobiography is his reference to those boyish and glowingly modest curtain speeches he made when called out by an enthusiastic first night audience. They were so delightfully and a shade awkwardly impromptu. I have heard several and always left the theater bestowing a mental hug on one who could be so talented and at once so shy and charming in accepting the honors. But Coward reveals it was all acting. He always expected the call and composed his little simplicity and rehearsed it many times in front of the mirror before the opening night. Certain speeches by authors are a bit passe in New York, but they always manage to wangle one out of Coward when he comes to town. And they are usually as good as any highlight of his performance.

Visitor Senses Unrest in Rome

Finds Warlike Signs Generally Prevalent.

BY DAN ROGERS
United Press Correspondent

LONDON, June 14—The city of Rome to a traveler typifies the unrest current in Europe. It presents the appearance of a nation at war—or expecting war tomorrow.

The correspondent stayed there overnight on an air trip to the Adriatic. In 12 hours a half-dozen revealing incidents gave signs of the times.

Uniforms were seen everywhere. The streets were crowded with soldiers, sailors and airmen, many of them bearing arms. At the huge sports arena, young men drilled—a close order marching drill that had no peaceful use. These were in civilian clothes and were not armed.

Two streetcars pulled up and disgorged a company of yelling, singing youths in their early teens. They wore uniforms and iron-shod field boots. Each slung a rifle to his shoulder as they smartly formed squads and marched away, still singing a Fascist song. They were joyous in their military pursuit.

A train of trucks passed, filled with troops. These were steel helmets and stern faces. No song came from them.

At the hotel, the Italian barber inquired if the correspondent was English. "No, American," was the reply. "Oh, Americano!" the barber exclaimed, his face beaming, "that much better." Italians still dislike the English for leading sanctions against them during the conquest of Ethiopia, and they do not intend to forget.

In the bar of the hotel, one of the finest in Rome, were many men in evening clothes and beautifully gowned women. Suddenly a man, one of those in evening clothes, reached across the bar and grabbed some red roses from a vase.

"Red is for Communists!" he shouted and hurled them to the floor.

The barman expostulated. Blows followed words. Police were called. Excitement and a literal torrent of voluble Italian filled the room.

Il Duce's Home Guarded

Later the correspondent and a friend took a carriage and drove out to see Mussolini's home. It occupies a plot almost two square blocks in size and is surrounded by a high wall of masonry. A dozen apparent loiterers lounged along the front of the place.

"They are not loiterers but picked bodyguards," the resident of Rome whispered. "No one loiters here. Watch and I'll show you."

He ordered the carriage turned about at the end of the wall. Immediately the "loiterers" were alert. As the carriage neared Il Duce's high iron entrance gates on the return trip, two men strolled into the street from each side. They moved slowly and apparently aimlessly but when the carriage came opposite the gates they were within a yard of it, hands in coat pockets.

In addition, uniformed motorcycle police were stationed at each corner of the estate and several automobiles were ready for possible use by the plain clothes guards.

Air tourists in Italy who possess cameras of any description must have them sealed in a metal container at the frontier, there to stay until they leave Italy. Many areas are forbidden to foreign aircraft and as a consequence, rather limited avenues of approach are left at some of the principal airports.

THREAT TO LEADING MANHATTAN TEAMS DISPLAYED IN WEST

Both Major Leagues Idle Today After Series of Doubleheaders.

BY SID FEDER
Associated Press Writer

The second invasion by the American league's east and the National's west was over today, leaving both New York teams still in the driver's seat.

Although the biggest bust of all was a western club—Pittsburgh's collapsible Pirates—the just concluded swing in both leagues showed a balance of power through the west that spelled trouble in large doses for Manhattan's defending pennant holders.

The victory column showed 37 triumphs for the American league's four western teams in their home stay, compared to 15 for the invading Easterners. In the National loop, although the easterns were at home, they won only 25 games, to 32 for the touring troupes.

Pacing the western outfits, Chicago's two teams—the Cubs and White Sox—were each only a half game off the pace in their respective loops, with the St. Louis Cardinals coming up fast back of the Cubs, and the Detroit Tigers red-hot after the younger circuit pace-setters.

With both leagues idle till tomorrow, here's for a quick look down the line:

The Giants won nine of 14 home starts, but how they did it is a secret no one knows. Their hitting is off; their pitching mediocre. They've collected just 26 hits in their last 45 innings. Yesterday they were held to four hits by Peaches Davis to drop a doubleheader opener 5-1 to the Reds, but came back to take the nightcap 6-2.

The Yankee pitching staff is overworked through assorted ailments to Monte Pearson and Spurgeon Chandler, but the power hitting, particularly by Joe Dimaggio and Lou Gehrig, enabled them to nearly break even in the west. They walloped the Browns 16-0 in the opener yesterday, and battled to an 11-inning 8-all tie in the nightcap, with Dimaggio clouting three homers.

The White Sox won 12 of 14 at home, best record in the majors, by suddenly coming up with pitching to go with their heavy hitting ...They closed out with a double win 9-4 and 3-2 over the Senators yesterday.

Crippled by early-season injuries, the Cubs' crack pitching staff is all present once more, and they've brought with them one of the league's heaviest hitting attacks. They banged out 22 hits for a 16-8 opener win against the Phillies yesterday, then dropped the nightcap 4-3.

The Pirates have lost nine of their last 11, nose-diving to fourth place. Yesterday Van Mungo and the newly-acquired Freddy Fitzsimmons beat them twice as the Dodgers won 6-2 and 4-1.

Dizzy Dean is keeping his mouth shut and producing—so the Cards are coming back. Bob Weiland whipped the Bees 6-2 in yesterday's opener; then Dean pitched a five-hit, nine-strikeout 1-0 shutout in the nightcap.

Put the Indians in Cleveland and they're tops. Send them on the road and they flounder. They closed out their successful home stand with a double win over the punch-less Athletics, 2-1 and 2-0.

Mickey Cochrane's injury and ailments to first-rank pitchers haven't stopped the Tigers. With Roxie Lawson, Tommy Bridges and Elden Auker turning in fine performances, they're back in third place. A 3-1 victory over the Red Sox wound up a .750 home stand yesterday.

LES WOLFE TO MEET HONEY BOY TONIGHT

Mat Contest May Be Held Outdoors If Weather Permits.

Weather permitting, tonight's wrestling card will be held at the outdoor arena on Uncapher. Otherwise the bouts will be moved to the Marion Steam Shovel gymnasium. Heading the program tonight is the meeting of Les Wolfe of Sherman, Tex., and Honey Boy Hackney of Atlanta, Ga.

Last week Hackney succeeded in unveiling Wolfe, who previously had been scrapping here under the moniker, Mystery Mike. Hackney however, devoted his entire efforts to relieving his opponent of the mask and failed to counter Wolfe's rough display, consequently losing the bout.

The fracas will be over the 90-minute period with two falls to win. In another similar featured attraction, Sergeant Bob Kennaston of Silver City, Ore., will return here in an effort to tame the wild western grappler, Arkansas' Hob Montgomery. The program will open at 8:30 o'clock with a 20-minute preliminary bout.

Toledo Still Fighting With Millers for Lead in Association.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, June 14—Regardless of where the Toledo Mud Hens finish in this season's American association title race, they already owe the Detroit Tigers, a vote of thanks.

At this stage of the chase, it appears the Hens will wind up at the top, or very close to it, and players sent to Toledo from the parent Bengals are figuring largely in the amazing showing of a team which finished in the association cellar last year.

The Hens, fighting with Minneapolis for the lead, divided a double bill yesterday. They won the opener, 8 to 1, with Vic Sorrell, veteran righthander hurling four-hit ball to win his first start for his new teammates. The only run off him was Lefty Cooke's circuit smash.

The Millers came back to win the second tilt, 11 to 3. Spencer Harris smashed two homers.

Milwaukee, after losing its sixth straight game, 4 to 3, in the first game of a double bill against Louisville, came back to take the nightcap, 12 to 5. A three run rally in the twelfth inning gave the Colonels their win, Mateson's double being the decisive blow.

St. Paul and Columbus divided, the Saints winning 6 to 2 after the Red Birds had taken the first game, 9 to 6. Homers by John Rizzo and Justin Stein put the Red Birds ahead in the opener and Max Macon did some brilliant relief hurling to hold the victory in the ninth after the Saints had rallied to fill the sacks.

In the second tilt St. Paul scored five runs in the first inning to give Babe Phelps an easy victory.

Indianapolis defeated Kansas City 5 to 2 and then lost the second game 8 to 5. Bob Logan hurled steady ball in the opener for the Tribe. In the Blue's victory, they scored the winning runs in a big four-run seventh inning.

U. S. Ryder Cup Team Is Tested At Golf Tilts

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, June 14—Fresh from their latest record-smashing performances in the United States Open Golf championship, where Ralph Guldahl led the field home with the new low 72-hole aggregate of 281, America's crack professional brigade now aims to break the British "jinx" that has so far pursued them in Ryder cup competition.

The ten-man team, including such sharpshooting newcomers as Guldahl, Sammy Snead and Byron Nelson, sails this Wednesday for England and the biennial international matches with British professional rivals at Southport, to be played late this month. They will be joined abroad by Walter Hagen as non-playing captain and sent into action against a British team which includes the redoubtable Henry Cotton for the first time.

So far the home team has had the edge in the Ryder cup play, begun in 1927 at Worcester, Mass. The Americans have won three of the five series but they were beaten on both trips abroad, in 1929 and 1933. On the basis of what the team's "new blood" did to old man par at Oakland Hills, there are high hopes of triumph at Southport. But the British will be no part of a setup.

For one thing, scoring conditions can hardly match those at Oakland Hills, where the sharpshooters took full advantage of perfect weather, extraordinary pace-making, and the "breaks" to put on the greatest scoring show in the 41-year history of the U. S. open championship.

In rapid succession, during the final 36 holes Saturday, wee Bobby Cruickshank, 24-year-old Sam Snead, and 25-year-old Ralph Guldahl took turns at shellacking par and posting the leading score. Cruickshank, with a 67 and 72, registered the best performance of his career with a 285 that was good only for third money at the finish. Snead came along with a near-record 283. Then Guldahl capped the climax by coming from behind to win with 281, a score that licked par by seven strokes, beat his nearest rival by two, and clipped one shot from the tournament and world record set just a year ago by Tony Manero at Baltusrol, New Jersey.

Guldahl had successive rounds of 71, 69, 72 and 69—par or better for every tour of Oakland Hills. Down and almost "out" a year ago, wondering where meal money would come from for his wife and baby, Guldahl fought his way to the peak in one of the toughest of all competitive sports.

The $1,000 he collected for the winner's share at Oakland Hills boosted his tournament earnings for this year alone to $5100. The title will mean at least $10,000 more, from various sources, and should lead to a lucrative club job.

STEAM SHOVEL TEAM BEATEN BY BELLEVUE MERCHANTS, 7 TO 6

Single Run in Last Half of Final Inning Defeats Diggers.

The Marion Steam Shovel A. A. baseball club was edged, 7 to 6, on its home field on Uncapher avenue yesterday afternoon by the Bellevue Merchants. The defeat gives the Marion outfit an even break for the season's games, with two victories out of four starts.

Bellevue led off in scoring yesterday with a pair of runs in the initial inning, and the Diggers came back with a single tally in the last of the inning. Bellevue scored again with three runs in the third and one in the sixth, but the pair of tallies by the Diggers in the fourth and three more in the eighth knotted the count at the start of the final frame.

A lone run in he last half of the final inning netted the visiting team the narrow margin victory. In previous contests the M. S. S. aggregation has defeated the Columus Craven Drugs 17 to 9, the Columbus Independents 7 to 2 and lost to the Bucyrus Sozonian Vaults, 9 to 5. The Marion club will practice Wednesday night at 5:30 o'clock at Lincoln park in preparation for a game here next Sunday with Johnstown.

Chicago Excite Over Scrap o Louis-Braddoc

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

CHICAGO, June 14—Boys, thi a fight-mad town...the Windy C hasn't been so steamed up a Dempsey and Tunney clashed 10 years ago...That bout drew 1 000 fans to Soldier Field and biggest gate on record—more t two million (try to count smackers). The late Tex Rick blinked his eyes and said: "I ca seed anything like it"...no anybody since They don't look a gate like that when Jimmy B dock and Joe Louis collide June but a beaming Mike Jacobs lay you odds the receipts hit million mark.

* * *

Don't wait for the odds Louis to soar...they won't anything they'll sink...Right no the best you can get on State a Madison street is two to one and you'd be surprised ho scarce the Louis dollars are. Reason is, the Bomber has look anything but hot in his drills a at Kenosha...On the other ha Braddock is boxing better tha he did when he upset the app cart and trimmed Maxie Baer Incidentally, that was two yea ago yesterday.

* * *

Henry Cooper, one of Braddoc sparring partners, was chased o of Max Schmeling's camp a ye ago because he was too good...F a guy who never took a golf les Sammy Snear, the pride of W Virginia, did all right in the op If you ask us...Barney Ross, w is training with Braddock, says the champ answers the bell for t fifth round, he's a sure winner.

* * *

Baseball men say the Red So got all the best of that trade wit the Senators...This town is ma over the White Sox...attendance for the current home stand ha been the best since 1926...Mayb this is one for the book: whil the Milky Way farms was wi ning Saturday's Latonia Derb with Reaping Reward, its re rewarded was taking the Prince Pat stakes at Washington Par ...The Valdina farms was secon in both races with Eagle Pa and Hermania and John Ha Whitney had the third horses i Flying Scott and Inhale...to t that one.

Note to home run hitters: Zo Bonura of the White Sox ate t plates of spaghetti for lunch yeste day and poled two...Writers cove ing the Joe Louis camp at Kanos say the Bomber has lost his leathe to fight.

The Stars Say—

For Tuesday, June 15

ACCORDING TO the lunar transits of this day, one should feel a very expansive and progressive tendency, with an urge to accomplish much of a worthwhile nature. Persons and corporations of standing will be found disposed to co-operate with such aims, in a friendly and substantial manner.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of progress, prosperity and achievement. They will find that their enterprise, industry and large ideas and plans will find ready support from influential persons or institutions.

A child born on this day may be efficient, ambitious and trustworthy, attracting powerful friends and supporters, who may assist to high places in both business and social life.
